opened the meeting in a few well chosen remarks, and introduced as the first speaker Hon. Harry R. Comly, who reviewed the history of the national democratic party from its birth to the present time, and told how it was that that party had existed for so many years, and had farnished the greater portion of the legislators, presidents and governors of the land. Why had the principles of that During the interval Scheers proposed they should walk over to Lake Pen d'Oreille and take a swim. When they reached the lake Scheers and Thornton went in bathing, but Beers and Simmons remained on the bank sitting down. While the legislators, presidents and governors of the land. Why had the principles of that party been handed down unsuffied? Looking over its spiemed history we receive an answer that will last until the last success in the west. (Applause.) The founders of the government had proclaimed in the preamore to one of the grandest documents on earth—the constitution—the vity exfirst two were plunging and splashing in the placid waters of the large and beautiful lake, those on the bank barked in the Ser tember sun. Beer had a remnant of a whisky flask in his pocket and after drain-ing it of its contents took a scrap of paper and wrote the sensational lines, afterwards placing the paper in the bottle and standwas inherent in and emanated from the people alone. Democracy led by Thomas Jefferson had given us free speech and a free press. The democratic party was the only party in the United States founded on sound principles. The others are merely opposition parties. When the speaker asked if Samuel J. Tilden was not elected president by a large majority the appliance and exclamations of assent could be heard for blocks away. In every liberal measure the democracy had ever been forward and stood in the front and had been a bulwark in the defence of ing up huried it in the lake. Scheers saw him throw the flask but paid no attention to it. After the quartette had started away, Beer said to Thornton, "Thornton, you're supposed to be dead." He had read little editorial in the Journal or the Heral to the effect that for the task twenty sears the republican party had ruled the United States and under its benighmillence the population of the country had doubled, and its wealth had increased from one fold ten fold. He would like to ask anyone it to the fold. He would like to ask anyone it.

they had received any portion of that in crease of property. It was in the hands of the few through the instrumentality of laws passed by the republican party. Hourged his listners to examine into the matter closely. The republicans taiked about protecting the people. The only protection that the people received came from the hands of the democratic party. (Appliause.) The protection of republicanism meant the protection of the few. What had the republican party ever done for Montana? So far as Montana was concerned the republican party ever done for Montana? So far as Montana was concerned the republican party had injured the people. The speaker had had experience in the legislative assembly of Montana since 1867, and up-to the last legislative assembly, which was republican, the territory had been out of dept, yet the first act of the last legislature He considered it a good law.

In his reference to the republican state ticket the speaker called it the "Tom-Tom ticket," an appellation that caught the fancy of the audience. He had heard that Col. In closing his address Mr. Wallace painted a word picture of Montana as she stands ready to become a young and lusty state, and his audience was spell-bound with the easy flow of his eloquence, the like of which was never uttered from one so young. It was an improper and sore taneous outpouring of the English language, such as has made ingersoil famous.

The Helena democracy should be proud of Mr. Wallace who is a rested yesterday by Officer Cookham just the language of Mr. Wallace who is a rest of the language. The Helena democracy should be proud of Mr. Wallace who is a credit to the city and would prove a shining light in the halls of Montana's first congress. The speaker was cheered to the echo as he concluded many shouting for him to continue. In the absence of the chairman at the close of the meeting, C. B. Nolan announced that there would be another meeting Monday night at Assembly hall, when Thomas B. Fitzgerald of Anaconda, democratic candidate for state auditor will address the voters.

The Helena democracy should be proud of Mr. Wallace who is a credit to the city as he was boarding a train at the Northern Pacific depot and had a ticket in his pocket which would take him to San Francisco. He was detained upon the complaint of his four business partners, who allege that LeCaff defrauded them by selling banked wood at seventy-five cents a cord and keeping the money. They accidentally heard of his intended departure, but were disappointed in discovering when he was arrested he only had $1.75 about him.

Flattering Reports from the Embryo Mining Districts of Jefferson County-Iron Mountain.

The Peerless Jennie Mining company filed its annual statement with the county recorder yesterday. The capital stock is $1,000,000 of which $999,975 has been paid in by the purchase of mining property; the amount of indebtedness of the com pany is placed at $54,577 80. The state ment is signed and sworn to by the trustees, E. A. Beattie, H. R. Comly and W.

C. Child. The annual statement of the Bullion con panylalso filed shows indebtedness amount ing to $841.57. The capital stock $300,000 is all paid in by the purchase of mining property. The trustees are Henry Klein, A. M. Holter and H. R. Comiy.

After nearly one year's time the Carlisle Mining company of London, owning property in New Mexico, has at last taken up the bond en the Phil Shenon group of mines near Bannack, embracing sixteen claims, the most important one being the Golden Leaf. The consideration while not definitely known is said to have been $150,000. The many friends of Phil Shenon will congratulate him on his good fortune, of which he is deserving, being one of the most persistent and energetic miners in Montana, who knows a piece of quartz when he sees it. Phil Shenon worked steadily on these mines for about five years and during that time thoroughly developed his property. The mines have undergone a severe scrutiny by the best experts of the country and the fact that the deal has been consummated leaves no ing to $841.57. The capital stock $300,000 perts of the country and the fact that the deal has been consummated leaves no doubt as to the value of the property.

The deal was brought about through Prof. A. E. Walton and F. E. Chadbourne, of this city, who secured a bond on it for their English employers. About three weeks ago J. Stewart Wallace, M. P., W. N. Symington, of New York, and G. B. Eustace, of London, arrived in Montana to investigate the property, and its every investigate the property, and its every leve, stope, winze, drift and tunnel was put under the severest test. The final transactions of the deal were perfected at Butte. Mr. Wallace asked for an extension of the bond for sixty days. H. P.
